I have a Data Visualization, Image Gallery, and An HTML5 video. It is all real content. I decided to make this website because I had the files laying around from a business I was planning on starting with a friend of mine and still may start one day. I designed the site with a very simplistic but professional looking theme in mind. It is very much the site I would want if I were to start this company.

All of the images I used were at least partially made by me, some mostly made by my friend.
